Item 4 – Advisory Services

A. Firm Information

Gunpowder Capital Management, LLC dba Oliver Wealth Management (“Oliver Wealth” or “OWM”) is a registered investment advisor with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”). Oliver Wealth was organized as a Limited Liability Company (“LLC”) under the laws of the State of Maryland in February 1996 and became a registered investment advisor in June 2021. Oliver Wealth is owned and operated by Brandon C. Oliver (Founder and Managing Partner). This Disclosure Brochure provides information regarding the qualifications, business practices, and the advisory services provided by Oliver Wealth.

B. Advisory Services Offered

Managed Account Program

Oliver Wealth offers wealth management services which includes investment management, financial planning and/or other advisory services to individuals, high net worth individuals, corporations, trusts, and estates (each referred to as a “Client”).

As a registered investment adviser, Oliver Wealth has a fiduciary duty to each of our Clients. As a fiduciary, we have a duty of care and loyalty and must conduct business with fairness and in good faith with each Client and seek to mitigate or eliminate any potential conflicts of interest. Oliver Wealth's fiduciary commitment is further described in the OWM's Code of Ethics. For more information about our Code of Ethics, please see Item 11 – Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading.

Oliver Wealth provides customized investment advisory solutions for its Clients. This is achieved through continuous personal Client contact and interaction while providing discretionary investment management and related advisory services. Oliver Wealth works closely with each Client to identify their investment goals and objectives along with their risk tolerance and financial situation in order to select a suitable portfolio strategy. Oliver Wealth will then construct an investment portfolio, in which we can utilize exchange-traded funds (“ETFs”), open-end mutual funds, individual stocks, individual bonds, closed-end mutual funds, alternative investments or combination thereof. We can also utilize covered options, limited partnerships, and/or other types in investments, as appropriate, to meet the needs of the Client. We can also retain certain types of legacy investments owned by a Client based on portfolio fit and/or tax considerations.

Oliver Wealth’s investment strategies are primarily long-term focused, but we may buy, sell, or re-allocate positions that have been held for less than one year due to circumstances such as a change in the Clients goals and objectives or a change in market conditions. Oliver Wealth will construct, implement, and monitor the portfolio to ensure it meets the goals, objectives, circumstances, and risk tolerance agreed to with the Client. Each Client will have the opportunity to place reasonable restrictions on the types of investments to be held in their respective portfolio, subject to acceptance by us. Though, portfolios which restrict a significant number of investments, including entire sectors and/or industries, could impact our ability to act on potential investment opportunities which could result in performance for your account that is different from similar accounts without such restrictions

Oliver Wealth evaluates and selects investments for inclusion in Client portfolios only after applying its internal due diligence process. Oliver Wealth may recommend, on occasion, redistributing investment allocations to diversify the portfolio. Oliver Wealth may recommend specific positions to increase sector or asset class weightings. We may recommend employing cash positions as a possible hedge against market movement. Oliver Wealth may recommend selling positions for reasons that include, but are not limited to, harvesting capital gains or losses, business or sector risk exposure to a specific security or class of securities, overvaluation or overweighting of the position[s] in the portfolio, change in risk tolerance of the Client, generating cash to meet Client needs, or any risk deemed unacceptable for the Client's risk tolerance.

At no time will Oliver Wealth accept or maintain custody of a Client's funds or securities, except for the limited authority as outlined in Item 15 – Custody. We typically manage Client assets either within the designated account[s] held directly at the Client's Custodian (Please see Item 12 – Brokerage Practices) and/or through the use of a third-party platform which provides us the ability to actively manage our Client's held away accounts (i.e., 401k accounts, Profit Sharing accounts), pursuant to the terms of the wealth management agreement.

Participant Account Management (Discretionary)

The Participant Account Management program is an extension of Oliver Wealth's Managed Account Program which is detailed in the previous sub-section above. This service provides us the ability to actively managed a Client's held away accounts for which we would normally be unable to access without having custody.

We use a third-party platform to facilitate the management of held away assets such as 401k accounts, defined contribution plan accounts, HSA accounts and other assets with discretion. The platform allows us to avoid having custody of Client funds since we do not have direct access to Client log-in credentials to affect trades. We are not affiliated with the platform in any way and receive no compensation from them for using their platform. A link will be provided to the Client allowing them to connect an account[s] to the platform. Once Client account[s] is connected to the platform, we will review the current account allocations. When deemed necessary, Oliver Wealth will rebalance the account after considering the clients investment goals and risk tolerance, and any change in allocations will consider current economic and market trends. The goal is to improve account performance over time, minimize loss during difficult markets, and manage internal fees that harm account performance. Client account[s] will be reviewed at least quarterly and allocation changes will be made as deemed necessary. All held away accounts managed utilizing this platform will be limited to investing in the same security offerings that are available through the institution who holds the account. For example, all 401k accounts will be limited to investing in same offerings that are made available to it by the plan's sponsor.

Financial Planning Services

Oliver Wealth will typically provide a variety of financial planning and consulting services to Clients, pursuant to a written financial planning agreement. The services offered to address a Client's financial situation will mainly depend on their goals and objectives. Generally, such financial planning services involve preparing a formal financial plan or performing a financial consultation based on the Client's goals and objectives. The plan or consultation typically encompass one or more areas of need, including but not limited to, investment planning, retirement planning, personal savings, education savings, insurance needs, and/or other areas of a Client's financial situation.

A financial plan or financial consultation rendered to the Client will usually include general recommendations for a course of activity or specific actions to be taken by the Client. For example, recommendations may be made that the Client start or revise their current investment programs, commence, or alternate retirement savings, establish education savings and/or charitable giving programs.

Oliver Wealth may also refer Clients to an accountant, attorney, or other specialists, as appropriate for their unique situation. For certain financial planning engagements, we will provide a written summary of the Client's financial situation along with our observations and any recommendations to be implemented by the Client. For consulting or ad-hoc engagements, we may not provide a written summary to the Client. Plans or consultations are typically completed within six (6) months of contract date, assuming all information and documents requested are provided promptly.

The Client is under no obligation to implement any of the recommendations made in the financial plan provided to them by OWM. Also, if a Client decides to implement any of the recommendations made in plan the Client is under no obligation to effect any associated transactions through our firm.

C. Client Account Management

Prior to engaging Oliver Wealth to provide investment advisory services, each Client is required to enter into one or more agreements with us that define the terms, conditions, authority and responsibilities of both Oliver Wealth and the Client. These services typically include:

- a. Establishing an Investment Strategy – Oliver Wealth, in connection with the Client, will develop a strategy that seeks to achieve the Client's goals, objectives and risk tolerance.
- b. Asset Allocation – Oliver Wealth will develop a strategic asset allocation that is targeted to meet the investment objectives, time horizon, financial situation, and tolerance for risk of each Client.
- c. Portfolio Construction – Oliver Wealth will implement a portfolio for the Client that is intended to meet the stated goals and objectives of the Client.
- d. Investment Management and Supervision – Oliver Wealth will provide investment management and ongoing oversight of the Client's investment portfolio.

D. Wrap Fee Programs

Oliver Wealth does not manage or place Client assets into a wrap fee program. Investment management services are provided directly by Oliver Wealth through the use of separately managed accounts.

E. Retirement Plans and Individual Retirement Accounts

When we provide investment advice to you regarding your retirement plan account or individual retirement account, we are fiduciaries within the meaning of Title I of the Employee

Retirement Income Security Act and/or the Internal Revenue Code, as applicable, which are laws governing retirement accounts. The way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests, so we operate under a special rule that requires us to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours.

Under this special rule's provisions, we must:

- Meet a professional standard of care when making investment recommendations (give prudent advice);
- Never put our financial interests ahead of yours when making recommendations (give loyal advice);
- Avoid misleading statements about conflicts of interest, fees, and investments;
- Follow policies and procedures designed to ensure that we give advice that is in your best interest;
- Charge no more than is reasonable for our services; and
- Give you basic information about conflicts of interest.

F. Assets Under Management

As of December 31, 2021, Oliver Wealth Management managed $292,390,828 in Client assets, all on a discretionary basis. We manage no client assets on a non-discretionary basis in which the client is responsible for implementing our investment recommendations on their own accord. Clients can request more current information at any time by contacting Oliver Wealth.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

The following section will detail the fee structure and compensation methodology for services provided by us. Each Client engaging Oliver Wealth for services described herein shall be required to enter into one or more written agreements with us.

A. Fees for Advisory Services

Managed Account Program

Wealth management fees are paid quarterly, in advance of each calendar quarter, pursuant to the terms of the wealth management agreement. Wealth management fees are based on the market value of assets under management at the end of the prior calendar quarter. Wealth management fees range from 0.035% to 2.50% annually. The advisory fee assessed in the first quarter of service will be prorated from the inception date of the account[s] to the end of the first quarter. Fees can be negotiable at our discretion. Certain Clients may be offered a fixed rate fee schedule. The Client's fees will take into consideration the aggregate assets under management with OWM. All securities held in accounts managed by us will be independently valued by the Client's Custodian. Oliver Wealth will not have the authority or responsibility to value any of the portfolio's securities.

The advisory fee collected by us is exclusive of, and in addition to any fees and expenses associated with the management of your account such as trade commissions, custody fees, and other related costs and expenses which are described in Item 5.C – Other Fees and Expenses below. However, we do not receive or share in any portion of these fees or expenses.

Participant Account Management Program (Discretionary)

The Advisory fee for assets which participate in the Participant Account Management Program will range from 0.035% to 2.5% annually. Clients who also participate in the Managed Account Program will be assessed the same fee for both programs. Clients will not be assessed a different fee percentage for each program. The advisory fee will be billed quarterly in advance and will be calculated based on the market value of the assets under management at the end of the prior calendar quarter. The advisory fee in the first quarter of service is prorated from the inception date of the account[s] to the end of the first quarter. Fees are negotiable at our discretion. Certain Clients may be offered a fixed rate fee schedule. The Client's fees will take into consideration the aggregate assets under management with Oliver Wealth. All securities held in accounts managed by Oliver Wealth will be independently valued by the Client's Custodian. Oliver Wealth will not have the authority or responsibility to value any of the portfolio's securities.

Financial Planning Services

Financial Planning services offered by OWM are performed at a maximum rate of $300 per hour. We also offer financial planning services for a fixed fee which will into account the number of hours that are anticipated to complete the project at a rate of $300 per hour. Hourly and fixed fees are negotiable and will consider factors such as the nature and complexity of the services provided, along with the client's overall relationship with us. Hourly and fixed fee projects may be invoiced up to fifty percent (50%) of the expected total cost in advance and upon completion of the financial planning agreement with the remaining due at delivery. We will provide you with an estimate which will detail the total hours and overall costs of each project prior to executing the financial planning agreement with you. All terms and conditions related to the financial planning arrangement are set forth in the financial planning agreement.

B. Fee Billing

Wealth management fees are calculated by the Oliver Wealth or its delegate and deducted directly from the Client's account[s] at the Custodian. We will send an invoice to the Custodian indicating the amount of the fees to be deducted from the Client's account[s] at the beginning of the respective quarter. The amount due is calculated by multiplying the quarterly rate (e.g., $1\%/4 = 0.25\%$) to the total assets under management with Oliver Wealth at the end of the prior quarter. Clients will be provided with a statement, at least quarterly, from the Custodian reflecting deduction of the investment advisory fee. Clients are strongly encouraged to review their statements to verify the appropriateness of the advisory fee deducted from your account and to compare them to any reports we may provide you to ensure their accuracy. The Custodian does not perform a verification of the advisory fee we deduct from your account. Clients provide written authorization in advance which permit advisory fees to be deducted by Oliver Wealth from their account[s] held by the Custodian. This authorization is granted to us in the wealth management agreement you execute with us and through separate account forms provided by the Custodian.

We will be unable to deduct fees from held away accounts that participate in the Participant Account Management Program, such as 401(k)'s. It is not possible for us to directly debit fees from these types of accounts, so those fees will need to be assigned to another client account that we can debit directly on a pro-rata basis. If the client does not have another account we can directly debit, those fees will be billed directly to the client. Accounts initiated or terminated during a calendar quarter will be charged a pro-rated fee based on the amount of time remaining in the billing period.

C. Other Fees and Expenses

Clients can incur certain fees or charges imposed by third parties (i.e., broker-dealers, custodians), other than Oliver Wealth, in connection with investments made on behalf of your account[s]. The Client is responsible for all account and trade related fees such as custody fees, brokerage commissions, transaction fees, SEC fees, internal fees and margin fees and interest. The Custodian recommended by us does not charge brokerage commissions for ETF and equity trades in our Client's account[s] provided that the account meets the terms and conditions of the Custodian's brokerage requirements. However, there may be transaction charges assessed by the Custodian related to transactions in certain mutual funds and other types of investments. The fees charged by Oliver Wealth are separate and distinct from these custody and execution fees.

In addition, all fees paid to Oliver Wealth for investment advisory services are separate and distinct from the expenses charged by mutual funds and ETFs to their shareholders, if applicable. These fees and expenses typically include management fees, operating expenses (e.g., custodial fees, legal fees, transfer agent expenses, trading expenses, marketing and distribution fees and other administrative costs) and certain shareholder fees (e.g., redemption fees, exchange fees, account fee and purchase fee). These fees and expenses are described in each fund's prospectus. A Client may be able to invest in these products directly, without the services of Oliver Wealth, but would not receive the same advisory services provided by Oliver Wealth which are designed, among other things, to assist the Client in determining which products or services are most appropriate for their own financial situation, investment objectives and risk tolerance. Also, these investments would not be a part of our investment strategies, investment performance monitoring or portfolio allocations. Accordingly, the Client should review both the fees and expenses charged by the fund[s] and the fees charged by Oliver Wealth to fully understand the total fees to be paid. Please refer to Item 12 – Brokerage Practices for additional information.

D. Advanced Payment of Fees and Termination

Oliver Wealth is typically compensated for its wealth management services in advance of the quarter in which services are rendered. Either party can terminate the wealth management agreement, at any time, by providing advance written notice to the other party. The Client can also terminate the wealth management agreement within five (5) business days of executing the agreement at no cost to them. After the five-day period, the Client will incur charges for bona fide advisory services rendered from the date the agreement was executed to the point of termination and such fees will be due and payable by the Client. Upon termination, we will refund any unearned, prepaid investment advisory fees from the effective date of termination to the end of the quarter. The Client's wealth management agreement with us is non-transferable without the Client's prior consent.

E. Compensation for Sales of Securities

Oliver Wealth does not buy or sell securities to earn commissions and does not receive any compensation for securities transactions in any Client account, other than the investment advisory fees noted above.

F. Retirement Plans and Individual Retirement Accounts

Our firm and our professionals owe a fiduciary duty to all our clients. We also serve as a fiduciary to advisory clients that are employee benefit plans (such as profit-sharing plans or pension plans) or individual retirement accounts (collectively, our "retirement clients") (IRAs) pursuant to ERISA or the Internal Revenue Code ("IRC"). When acting as a fiduciary to these plans, we are subject to specific duties and obligations under ERISA and the IRC that include among other things, restrictions concerning certain forms of conflicted compensation. To avoid engaging in prohibited transactions, the firm only charges fees for investment advice (i) about products for which our firm and/or our related persons do not receive any commissions or 12b-1 fees, or (ii) about products for which our firm and/or our related persons receive commissions or 12b-1 fees if such commission and fees are used to offset advisory fees.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Oliver Wealth does not charge performance-based fees for its investment advisory services. The fees charged by Oliver Wealth are as described in Item 5 – Fees and Compensation above and are not based upon the capital appreciation of the funds or securities held by any Client.

Oliver Wealth does not manage any proprietary investment funds or limited partnerships (for example, a mutual fund or a hedge fund) and has no financial incentive to recommend any particular investment option to our Clients.

Item 7 – Types of Clients

Oliver Wealth offers investment advisory services to individuals, high net worth individuals, corporations, trusts, and estates. Oliver Wealth generally does not impose a minimum relationship size.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

A. Methods of Analysis

Oliver Wealth primarily employs fundamental and technical analysis methods in developing investment strategies for our Clients. Oliver Wealth's research and analysis is typically derived from numerous sources, including financial media companies, third-party research materials, internet sources, and the review of certain materials related to a particular company's activities which may include annual reports, prospectuses, press releases and investment research prepared by other firms.

Fundamental analysis utilizes economic and business indicators as investment selection criteria. These criteria consist generally of ratios and trends that may indicate the overall strength and financial viability of the entity being analyzed. Assets are deemed suitable if they meet certain criteria which indicates that they could be a strong investment and that their value may be discounted by the market. While this type of analysis helps us in evaluating a potential investment, it does not guarantee that the investment will increase in value. Assets meeting the investment criteria utilized in the fundamental analysis can lose value and result in negative investment performance. We monitor these economic indicators to determine if adjustments to strategic allocations are appropriate. More details on Oliver Wealth's review process are included below in Item 13 – Review of Accounts.

Technical analysis is the evaluation of analyzing statistics generated by the market, such as historical prices and volume, rather than evaluating specific company data. Technical analysis involves the use of charts to identify market patterns and trends, which may be based on investor sentiment rather than the fundamentals of the company. The primary risk in using technical analysis is that the spotting of historical trends may not repeat themselves in the future. Even if the trend will eventually reoccur, there is no guarantee that Oliver Wealth will be able to accurately predict any such reoccurrence.

As noted above, Oliver Wealth generally employs a long-term investment strategy for our Clients which is consistent with their financial goals and risk preferences. Oliver Wealth will typically own all or a portion of a security for more than a year but can own it for shorter periods due to certain circumstances such as rebalancing a portfolio or meeting the cash needs of a Client. At times, Oliver Wealth can also buy and sell positions that are more short-term in nature, depending on the goals of the Client and/or the fundamentals of the security, sector, or asset class.

B. Risk of Loss

Investing in securities involves certain investment risks. The value of securities can fluctuate and lose value. Clients should be prepared to bear the potential risk of loss. Oliver Wealth will assist Clients in determining an appropriate strategy based on their tolerance for risk and other factors noted above. However, there is no guarantee that a Client will meet their investment goals and that the objectives of the investment strategy employed will be successful. Please see the general risks (Market Related Risks) associated with investing along with the risks associated with Oliver Wealth's investment strategies (Investment Related Risks) in the section below.

While the methods of analysis help us when evaluating a potential investment, it does not guarantee that the investment will increase in value. Assets meeting the investment criteria utilized in these methods of analysis can lose value and investors may experience negative investment performance. We monitor these economic indicators to determine if adjustments to strategic allocations are appropriate. More details on our review process are included below in Item 13 – Review of Accounts.

Each Client engagement will include a review of the Client's investment goals, financial situation, time horizon, tolerance for risk and other factors to develop an appropriate strategy for managing a Client's account. Client participation in this process, including full and accurate disclosure of requested information, is essential for us to develop a strategy that is suitable for you. We will rely on the background information provided by the Client or their designee without the duty or obligation to validate the accuracy and completeness of the information provided. It is the responsibility of the Client to inform us of any changes in their financial condition, goals or other factors that may affect our management of your account.

The risks associated with a particular strategy are communicated to each Client in advance of investing a Client's accounts. Working to determine your tolerance for risk is a very important part of the portfolio construction process.

Below are certain market related risks associated with our investment strategies:

i. Market Related Risks

The value of a Client's holdings can fluctuate in response to events specific to a particular company or group of companies, the financial markets, as well as economic, political, or social events in the U.S. and abroad. This risk is linked to the performance of the overall financial markets. The prevalence of these declines can be more significant during times of heightened volatility.

Equity (stock) Risk

Common stocks represent a share of ownership in a particular company. They are subject to the price fluctuations associated with the general stock market. The price of a company's stock can be significantly impacted by the market's perception and confidence in its current and future prospects. Investing in common stocks carries more risk than other investment types such as preferred stocks and debt obligations of the same issuer. In the event of a company's liquidation, common stockholders will have rights to the firm's assets after the rights of bondholders, other debt holders and preferred stockholders have been satisfied.

Company Risk

Every company has certain risks which are inherent in them which creates uncertainties about their current and future performance prospects. These risks can have an impact on the company's performance and effect their ability to make a profit or fail. The consequences can lead to significant reductions in the overall performance of the company and cause significant declines in the price of the stock. Such risks can be both internal (e.g., strikes, consumer preferences, manufacturing costs) and external (i.e., demand, increased competition, government regulations).

Market Capitalization Risk

Your portfolio could be invested in securities with varying levels of market capitalization (i.e., Large Cap, Mid-Cap and Small Cap). Each level has its own associated risks. Large Cap companies can lag in performance because they may experience lower rates of growth due to their size and may not be able to respond quickly to changes and opportunities in the market. Small and Mid-Cap stocks can be more susceptible to being exposed to business or economic events and may be less able to weather the impact of such events compared to larger, more established companies. Small and Mid-sized firms can also be less sophisticated when it comes to reacting and addressing certain challenges that may face its business operations due to limited product lines, size of management and experience and lack of resources. Small and mid-capitalization stocks tend to be more volatile than larger companies.

Management Risk

The management of your account is dependent on the success and failure of the investment strategies, research, analysis, and selection of portfolio securities we provide. The investment performance of your investment strategy depends on the skill of the key individuals responsible for directly managing your account. If the investment strategy we implement on your behalf is not successful, the value of your account will decrease. There is no guarantee that the objectives of the investment strategy employed will be successful.

Trading Risk

Frequent trading can affect portfolio performance, particularly through increased brokerage and other transaction costs (if applicable) and taxes. Infrequent trading can affect portfolio performance, particularly through ongoing fees and other costs (if applicable) which can intrinsically cost more than trading commissions. Additionally, you should be aware that the use of margin, options and short sales are higher risk strategies. It is possible to lose all your principal, and sometimes more. In a cash account, your risk is limited to the amount of money that you have invested. In a margin account, your risk includes the amount of money invested plus the amount that has been loaned to you including interest. When you short sell, your losses can be infinite.

ii. Investment Related Risks

Described below are some risks associated with specific types of investments that we could recommend when managing your portfolio. Many of these investments are usually sold by use of a prospectus or other offering document. Clients should review these documents carefully for more detailed information regarding the specific risks. All of these investment types are subject to the risk of loss which can result in a partial or total loss of all your principal invested.

Equities

Investing in individual stocks carries certain risks. Among these risks includes systematic risk, also known as market risk, which is the potential for the entire market to decline. Systematic risk cannot be completely avoided through diversification. This involves factors or events which can impact the entire market such as inflation, interest rates, recessions, wars and other issues. Unsystematic risk is the potential that any one stock may go down in value, independent of the stock market as a whole. Business risk is the possibility a company will have lower than anticipated profits or experience a loss rather than making a profit. Event risk is the possibility that an unforeseen event will negatively affect a company, industry or security.

Closed-End Funds

Closed-end funds are a type of mutual fund in which a fixed shares are sold through a single initial public offering (IPO). These shares are typically bought and sold on a stock exchange, but no new shares will be issued and the amount of money flowing into the fund will not increase. Closed-end funds are less illiquid than a typical mutual fund and may not be readily marketable. They can also be subject to higher levels of volatility and could be heavily discounted. To help provide investors with some liquidity, the fund can offer to repurchase a certain percentage of shares from time to time. Thus, clients may be unable to liquidate all or a portion of their shares in these types of funds when they desire to do so.

Bonds, High-Yield Bonds and Other Debt Obligations

High-yield bonds and other debt obligations are issued by companies or municipalities that do not qualify for "investment-grade" ratings (i.e., Moody's: (Baa3 or better), Standard & Poor's: (BBB- or better), Fitch: (BBB- or better)) by one or more rating agencies. These bonds carry a greater risk of failure to repay both principal and interest and have a greater risk of default than those obligations that are rated investment-grade. The potential deterioration of an issuer's financial health (i.e., reduced cash flow, deteriorating balance sheet, falling profit margins) will typically result in a downgrade in the rating of the issuer's bond[s] and will increase the risk of default. There is also the risk that the bond's market value will decline as interest rates rise and that an investor will suffer a significant loss of principal if liquidated before maturity or will not be able to liquidate the bond at all before maturity.

ETF Risks

ETFs are typically investment companies that are legally classified as an open-end mutual fund. Typically, they will track a particular index, sector, currency, commodity, or other asset. However, they differ from traditional mutual funds in that ETF shares that are listed can be bought or sold on a securities exchange. The performance of an ETFs is subject to market risk, including the possible loss of principal. The price of ETFs will fluctuate with the price of the underlying securities that make up the funds. In addition, ETFs have a trading risk based on the loss of cost efficiency if the ETFs are traded actively and a liquidity risk if the ETFs has a large bid-ask spread and a low trading volume. The price of an ETF fluctuates based upon the market movements and may dissociate from the index being tracked by the ETF or the price of the underlying investments. An ETF purchased or sold at one point in the day can have a different price than the same ETF purchased or sold a short time later.

Bond ETFs

Bond ETFs are subject to specific risks, including the following: (1) interest rate risk, (i.e., the risk that bond prices will fall if interest rates rise, and vice versa) which primarily depends on the bond's time to maturity and its coupon rate; (2) reinvestment risk (i.e., the risk that any profit gained could be reinvested at a lower rate than was previously being earned); (3) inflation risk (i.e., the risk that the cost of living and inflation may increase at a rate that exceeds the income investment thereby decreasing the investor's rate of return); (4) credit default risk (i.e., the risk that a company may default on its debt obligation and is unable to facilitate payment of principal and any interest); (5) credit risk (i.e. the risk that a rating agency may downgrade the company's credit rating which could negatively impact investor confidence in the company's ability to repay its debt); and (6) liquidity risk (i.e., the risk that a bond may not be sold immediately or even before maturity due to a lack of a market to liquidate).

Mutual Fund Risks

A mutual fund is a company organized to aggregate the funds of individual investors into a pool that invests in securities such as stocks, bonds, and short-term debt. The assets of the mutual fund are known as its portfolio and individual investors purchase shares in the mutual fund. These shares represent the investor's ownership in the mutual fund and each investor shares pro rata in the income and/or capital gains that it generates. Also, each investor also shares in the fees and expenses associated with the fund and these fees and expenses will reduce the investor's overall performance. The performance of a mutual fund is subject to market risk, including the possible loss of principal. The price of a mutual fund will fluctuate with the value of the underlying securities that make up the fund. The price is typically set daily therefore a mutual fund purchased at one point in the day will typically have the same price as a mutual fund purchased later that same day. Dividends and/or interest payments can also fluctuate as market conditions fluctuate. Past performance does not guarantee future results.

Options Contracts

An option is a contract which gives the buyer the right, but without obligation, to either buy or sell an underlying asset at a specific price on or before a certain date. Investments in options contracts have the risk of losing value in a relatively short period of time and sometimes even more depending on the strategy employed. Option contracts are leveraged instruments that allows the holder of a single contract which has exposure to many shares (typically 100 shares) of an underlying stock at a relatively small premium. This leverage can compound gains or losses. A holder of an option can experience significant losses in a short period of time as the value of an option can fluctuate greater than the underlying security it represents. This risk reflects the nature of an option as a wasting asset which becomes worthless when it expires. An option holder who neither sells their option in the secondary market nor exercises it prior to its expiration will necessarily lose their entire investment. An option writer can be assigned an exercise at any time during the period the option is exercisable.

For more information regarding the risks of options, please read the “Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options” brochure, which can be found on the Options Clearing Corporation’s website at www.theocc.com.

Margin Borrowings

The use of short-term margin borrowings can result in certain additional risks for investors. For example, if securities are purchased by borrowing funds on margin, investors can be subject to a “margin call”. A margin call usually occurs when the value of the securities held a margin account falls below the “maintenance requirement”, which represents the minimum equity that must be always maintained in the account. The maintenance requirement can vary based on the kinds of securities held in the account. Investors who are subject to a margin call must either deposit additional funds, sell some or all the securities in the account or be the subject of a mandatory liquidation of the pledged securities to bring the account back above the minimum equity requirement. An investor can also be subject to margin fees and interest costs.

Alternative Investments (Limited Partnerships)

The performance of alternative investments (limited partnerships) can be volatile and can be subject to a significant amount of liquidity risk as the ability to sell them can be very limited. An investor could lose all or a portion of their investment. Such investments often have concentrated positions and investments that usually carry higher risks. Client should only have a portion of their assets in these investments. Oliver Wealth cannot provide oversight of these securities following client account termination. Clients should consider these risks when deciding whether to permit these investments for their accounts.

Past performance is not a guarantee of future returns. Investing in securities and other investments involve a risk of loss that each Client should understand and be willing to bear. Clients are reminded to discuss these risks with your advisory representative.

Item 9 – Disciplinary Information

There are no legal, regulatory, or disciplinary events involving Oliver Wealth or its owner. Oliver Wealth values the trust that our Clients place in us. We encourage you to perform the requisite due diligence on any advisor or service provider that you engage. You can research the firm and any of our Advisory Persons on the Investment Adviser Public Disclosure website at www.adviserinfo.sec.gov by searching Oliver Wealth Management, the Advisory Persons full name or CRD# 314867.

Item 10 – Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Oliver Wealth is not a registered broker-dealer, commodity firm, commodity trading advisor, or futures commission merchant, and does not have an application to register for any of the same pending. Oliver Wealth is also not a licensed insurance agency and is not affiliated with any insurance company. In addition, our firm does not recommend investment products in which it receives any form of compensation from the separate account manager or investment product sponsor.

Some of Oliver Wealth’s advisory representatives are licensed insurance agents with various insurance companies. On occasion, these advisory representatives may recommend and help facilitate the purchase of various insurance products as a part of the implementation of a Client’s financial plan. A Client can also request a review of any existing policies they maintain. The products utilized will typically include life and long-term care insurance.

These products are separate and distinct from the investment advisory services offered through Oliver Wealth, and the firm’s advisory representative will receive a commission or fees due to the sale of insurance related products. As a result, a conflict of interest therefore exists as these commissionable sales creates an incentive to recommend products based on compensation earned rather than the need of the Client. In no event is any client obligated, contractually or otherwise, to use the services of any licensed insurance agent acting in such capacity or to purchase products or services through our firm or any of our advisory representatives. Your advisory representative will explain the specific costs associated with any recommended investment or insurance product with you. You have the option to purchase investment or insurance products through other brokers or insurance agents who are not associated with us.

Our advisory representative may also recommend other third-party asset management firms through a business relationship with Oliver Wealth. Oliver Wealth will ensure that any third-party advisor recommended by the firm is registered either with the Securities and Exchange Commission or the appropriate state agency. If you establish an investment advisory relationship with one of these firms, our IARs may share in the advisory fees you pay to these asset management firms. This arrangement creates a conflict of interest because we have an incentive to recommend an advisor based on the amount of compensation we receive instead of what is in your best interest.

The sole business of Oliver Wealth and its owner is to provide investment advisory services to its Clients. Neither Oliver Wealth nor its Advisory Persons are involved in other business endeavors. Oliver Wealth does not maintain any affiliations with other firms, other than contracted service providers to assist with the servicing of our Client’s accounts.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

A. Code of Ethics

Oliver Wealth has implemented a Code of Ethics (the “Code”) that defines our fiduciary commitment to each Client. This Code applies to all persons associated with Oliver Wealth (“Supervised Persons”). The Code was developed to provide general ethical guidelines and specific instructions regarding our duties to each Client. Oliver Wealth and its Supervised Persons owe a duty of loyalty, fairness, and good faith towards each Client. It is the obligation of all Oliver Wealth’s Supervised Persons to adhere not only to the specific provisions of the Code, but also to the general principles that guide the Code. The Code covers a range of topics that address employee ethics and conflicts of interest. To request a copy of the Code, please contact Oliver Wealth at (410) 343-7125.

B. Personal Trading with Material Interest

Oliver Wealth allows our Supervised Persons to purchase and sell the same securities that are recommended to and purchased on behalf of our Clients. Oliver Wealth does not act in a principal (i.e., purchase or sale of a security from our own inventory) capacity or conducts agency cross transactions (i.e., acting as a broker for both the client another party involved in the purchase and sale of a security) on behalf of any our advisory clients. In addition, we do not act as the general partner of any fund or advise any type of investment company. Oliver Wealth does not have a material interest in any of the securities traded in our Client's accounts.

C. Personal Trading in Same Securities as Clients

Oliver Wealth allows our Supervised Persons to purchase and sell the same securities that are recommended to and purchased on behalf of our Clients. Oliver Wealth does not act in a principal (i.e., purchase or sale of a security from our own inventory) capacity or conducts agency cross transactions (i.e., acting as a broker for both the client another party involved in the purchase and sale of a security) on behalf of any our advisory clients. In addition, we do not act as the general partner of any fund or advise any type of investment company. Oliver Wealth does not have a material interest in any of the securities traded in our Client's accounts.

Oliver Wealth allows Supervised Persons to purchase or sell the same securities that are recommended to and purchased on behalf of Clients. Owning the same securities that are recommended (purchase or sell) to Clients presents a conflict of interest that, as fiduciaries, must be disclosed to Clients and mitigated through related policies and procedures. Oliver Wealth has adopted the Code to address standards of business conduct, insider trading (material non-public information controls); gifts and entertainment; outside business activities, political contributions and personal securities reporting. When trading for personal accounts, Supervised Persons have a conflict of interest when trading in the same securities as our Clients. The fiduciary duty to act in the best interest of our Clients can be violated if personal trades are executed at more favorable terms than Client trades, or by trading based on material non-public information (i.e., insider information). Oliver Wealth tries to mitigate this risk by requiring all Associated Person to report all their personal securities trades to us. The CCO or Designee monitors our employee's personal securities trades, at least quarterly, to ensure compliance with Oliver Wealth's Code of Ethics. Additionally, we require pre-clearance for all transactions in Initial Public Offerings (IPOs) and limited offerings. A pre-clearance review considers, at a minimum, whether the opportunity should be reserved for clients and if the opportunity is being offered to the individual by virtue of their position with Oliver Wealth. We also have adopted written policies and procedures to help detect the misuse of material, non-public information.

D. Personal Trading at Same Time as Client

While Oliver Wealth allows Supervised Persons to purchase or sell the same securities that are recommended to and purchased on behalf of Clients, such trades are typically aggregated with Client orders or traded afterwards. At no time will Oliver Wealth, or any Supervised Person of Oliver Wealth, transact in any security that is in conflict with the best interests of any Client.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

A. Recommendation of Custodian[s]

Oliver Wealth does not have discretionary authority to select the broker-dealer/custodian for custody and execution services. The Client will engage the broker-dealer/custodian (herein the "Custodian") to safeguard Client assets and authorize Oliver Wealth to direct trades to the Custodian as agreed upon in the wealth management agreement. Further, Oliver Wealth does not have the discretionary authority to negotiate commissions on behalf of Clients on a trade-by-trade basis.

While Oliver Wealth does not exercise discretion over the selection of the Custodian, we usually will recommend a Custodian to Clients for custody and execution services. Clients are not obligated to use the Custodian recommended by us and will not incur any extra fees or costs associated with using a custodian not recommended by Oliver Wealth. However, we may be limited in the services we can provide if the Client chooses to use another Custodian. The Custodian recommended by Oliver Wealth is chosen based on certain criteria such as, but not limited to, reasonableness of commissions charged to the Client, services made available to the Client, financial responsibility, execution capabilities, responsiveness, and its reputation and integrity. Oliver Wealth will generally recommend that Clients establish their account[s] at either Raymond James Financial, Inc. ("Raymond James") or Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. ("Charles Schwab"), a FINRA-registered broker-dealer and member SIPC. If a Client's selects Raymond James or Charles Schwab they will serve as the Client's "qualified custodian". Oliver Wealth maintains an institutional relationship with Raymond James, whereby Oliver Wealth receives certain benefits from Raymond James. Please see Item 14-Client Referrals and Other Compensation below.

Following are additional details regarding Oliver Wealth's brokerage practices:

1. Soft Dollars - Soft dollar arrangements involve the receipt of certain benefits by an investment advisor from a broker-dealer or custodian through the payment of commission revenue that is generated by client trading activity routed to them. Oliver Wealth does not participate in soft dollar programs or arrangements sponsored or offered by any broker-dealer/custodian. However, OWM receives certain benefits and services from the Custodian due to our relationship with them. Please see Item 14-Client Referrals and Other Compensation below.

2. Brokerage Referrals - Oliver Wealth does not receive any form of compensation from any third party in connection with the recommendation of a Client or for establishing an account.

3. Directed Brokerage - All Clients are serviced on a "directed brokerage basis", where Oliver Wealth will manage the Client's account and place trades in the established account[s] at the Custodian designated by the Client. OWM will not engage in any principal transactions (i.e., purchase or sale of any security to or from a Client from our own account) or cross transactions with other Client accounts (i.e., matching a buy and a sale of the same security between two Client account[s]). Oliver Wealth will not be obligated to select competitive bids on securities transactions and will not have the ability to obtain the lowest available transaction costs. These costs are determined by the Custodian.

B. Aggregating and Allocating Trades

The primary objective in placing orders for the purchase and sale of securities for Client accounts is to obtain the most favorable net results considering such factors as 1) price, 2) fees and expenses, 3) size of the order, 4) difficulty of execution, 5) confidentiality and 6) skill required of the Custodian. Oliver Wealth will execute its transactions through the Custodian as authorized by the Client. Oliver Wealth can aggregate orders into a block trade or multiple block trades when securities are purchased or sold through the Custodian for multiple (discretionary) accounts in the same trading day. If a block trade is partially filled, the order will be allocated on a pro rata basis which is consistent with the initial pre-allocation or size of the account. We will facilitate this process in a way that does not consistently advantage or disadvantage any Client account or group of Client accounts.

Item 13 – Review of Accounts

A. Frequency of Reviews

Reviews are performed at least annually but can be done more frequently at your request. Your advisory representative is responsible for reviewing and the continuous monitoring of your account[s]. Initially, we review the information related to your goals, investment objectives, risk tolerance and overall financial situation to help us recommend a particular advisory program or investment strategy suitable for you. We also review and update, at least annually, your current financial status, goals, and objectives to document continued suitability. More frequent reviews could be triggered by material changes in your life circumstances, changes or shifts in the economy and/or the financial markets, change in the management of mutual funds and market corrections. Your advisory representative is responsible for reviewing your account. Certain clients, dependent upon their choice of investment program will receive quarterly reports showing the investment performance in their account.

B. Causes for Reviews

As noted in 13.A above, a review of our Client's accounts will occur at least annually. Initially, we review the information related to your goals, investment objectives risk tolerance and overall financial situation to help us recommend a particular advisory program or investment strategy suitable for you. We also review and update, at least annually, your current financial status, goals and objectives to document continued suitability. More frequent reviews could be triggered by material changes in your life circumstances, large cash flows, changes or shifts in the economy and/or the financial markets, change in the management of mutual funds and market corrections. Your advisory representative is responsible for reviewing your account. Clients are encouraged to notify their advisory representative if changes occur in their financial situation that might require changes to their investment plan. Additional reviews could be triggered by material market, economic or political events.

C. Review Reports

The Client will receive brokerage statements no less than quarterly from the Custodian. These brokerage statements are sent directly from the Custodian to the Client. The Client can also establish electronic access to the Custodian's website so that the Client can view these reports along with their current balance and any associated account activity. Client brokerage statements will provide details about all positions, transactions and fees relating to the Client's account[s]. We may also provide Clients with periodic reports regarding their holdings, allocations, and performance.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

A. Compensation Received by Oliver Wealth

Oliver Wealth is a fee-based advisory firm, that is compensated solely by advisory fees charged to our Clients and is not compensated through the use any particular investment product. Oliver Wealth does not receive commissions or other compensation from product sponsors, broker-dealers or any un-related third party. Oliver Wealth may refer Clients to various unaffiliated, non-advisory professionals (e.g., attorneys, accountants, estate planners) to provide certain financial services necessary to meet the goals of our Clients. Likewise, Oliver Wealth may receive non-compensated referrals of new Clients from various third parties.

Participation in Institutional Advisor Platform (Raymond James & Charles Schwab)

Oliver Wealth has established an institutional relationship with both Raymond James and Charles Schwab to assist us in managing our Client account[s]. As previously noted in Item 12 – Brokerage Practices, Oliver Wealth does not receive any soft dollar benefits from any broker-dealer or custodian, but we do receive certain benefits and services through our relationship with Raymond James and Charles Schwab. For instance, both Raymond James and Charles Schwab provide us with access to their trading platform which is available only to advisors like Oliver Wealth. We also receive access to certain reporting tools, research, educational materials, and related support which helps us manage and grow our business. The benefits and services we receive may benefit us but may not benefit you directly. Also, some clients may benefit from the benefits and services we receive in greater proportion than other clients.

In fulfilling our fiduciary duty to our Clients, we endeavor at all times to put the interests of our Clients first. Clients should be aware, however, our relationship with both Raymond James and Charles Schwab creates a potential conflict of interest since the benefits and services we receive can influence our recommendation of this Custodian over other comparable custodians. For example, this conflict creates an incentive for us to recommend a particular firm as a custodian based on our relationship with them and the benefits we receive rather than what is in your best interest.

B. Client Referrals from Solicitors

Oliver Wealth engages independent solicitors to provide us with client referrals. Through these solicitation arrangements, we pay a cash referral fee to the Solicitor and/or their firm which is typically based on a percentage of the advisory fee we charge to manage the account of the client referred to us. The payment of referrals fees will not increase the amount of the fees paid by any client. However, clients should be aware that the receipt of this compensation can create an incentive for the solicitor to recommend us as your investment advisor over others for which no such compensation is received. Any such referral fee shall be paid solely from Oliver Wealth's investment management fee and shall not result in any additional charge to the client. If the client is introduced to Oliver Wealth by an unaffiliated solicitor, the solicitor at the time of the solicitation, must disclose the nature of the solicitor relationship and shall provide each prospective client with a copy of Oliver Wealth's written Disclosure Brochure (Form ADV Part 2A). Concurrently, the solicitor will also provide a copy of their own written disclosure statement which discloses the terms of the solicitation arrangement between Oliver Wealth and the solicitor, including the compensation they will receive from us.

We have relationship with a IndyFin, LLC (or "Indyfin") who is a third-party solicitor to receive client referrals. Indyfin is independent of and unaffiliated with Oliver Wealth and there is no employee relationship between Indyfin and Oliver Wealth. Indyfin does not supervise Oliver Wealth and has no responsibility for management of our client's portfolios or any other advice or services we offer. Oliver Wealth pays Indyfin an on-going fee for each successful client referral. This fee is usually a percentage of the advisory fee that the client pays to Oliver Wealth ("Solicitation Fee"). Oliver Wealth will not charge clients referred through Indyfin any fees or costs higher than its standard fee schedule offered to its clients.

Item 15 – Custody

Oliver Wealth does not accept or maintain custody of any of our Client accounts under any circumstances, except for our ability to directly deduct advisory fees from a Client's account. We do not accept any form of blanket authorization to withdraw funds and/or securities from a Client's account. All Clients must place their assets with a "qualified custodian" and/or grant us access to their held away accounts (i.e., 401k accounts, Profit Sharing Plan account) using a third-party platform through which we have a contractual relationship. Clients are required to engage their Custodian to retain their funds and securities and grant Oliver Wealth the ability to execute security transactions. Access to a Client's held away accounts using the third-party platform is granted through the execution of the wealth management agreement. The third-party platform allows us to avoid being considered to have custody of Client funds since we do not have direct access to Client log-in credentials to affect trades.

Clients should review statements provided by the Custodian and compare to any reports provided by Oliver Wealth to ensure accuracy, as the Custodian does not perform this review. For more information about custodians and brokerage practices, see Item 12 – Brokerage Practices.

If the Client gives us authority to move money from one account to another account, we may be deemed to have custody of those assets. To avoid additional regulatory requirements, the Custodian and Oliver Wealth have adopted safeguards to ensure that the money movements are handled in accordance with the SEC Rule 206(4)-2 (the "Custody Rule") and with the Client's instructions.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

Oliver Wealth generally has discretion over the selection and amount of securities to be bought or sold in a Client's accounts without obtaining prior consent or approval from the Client. However, these purchases or sales may be subject to specified investment objectives, guidelines, or limitations previously set forth by the Client and agreed to by Oliver Wealth. Discretionary authority will only be authorized upon full disclosure to the Client. The granting of such authority will be evidenced by the Client's execution of a wealth management agreement containing all applicable limitations to such authority. All discretionary trades made by Oliver Wealth will be in accordance with each Client's investment objectives and goals. Oliver Wealth may consider accepting non-discretionary accounts on a case-by-case basis.

Item 17 – Voting Clients Securities

Oliver Wealth does not accept proxy-voting responsibility for any Client. Clients will receive proxy statements directly from the Custodian. Additionally, we will not take any action or provide any advice with respect to any security that is named in or a subject of a class action lawsuit. We will assist in answering questions relating to proxies, however, the Client retains the sole responsibility for deciding how to vote a particular proxy and casting their vote. Also, we will subject to reasonably adequate advanced notice, gather and forward to you any information received by us related to proxies and class action legal matters involving any securities held in your accounts.

Item 18 – Financial Information

Registered investment advisors who maintain discretionary authority over their client's assets or accounts must disclose any financial conditions which would be reasonably likely to impair their ability to meet their contractual commitments with their clients.

Neither Oliver Wealth, nor its management, have any adverse financial situations that would reasonably impair our ability to meet all obligations to our Clients. Neither Oliver Wealth, nor any of its Advisory Persons, have been subject to any bankruptcy proceeding. Oliver Wealth is not required to deliver a balance sheet, along with this Disclosure Brochure, since we do not require prepayment of $1,200 or more in fees from a Client six months or more in advance.
